STATE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION MEETING

Our annual meeting will be held this year again at Hotel Marion, Little Rock, Arkansas. The dates are October 25 and 26, Thursday and Friday. On Thursday at ten o'clock in the morning there will be an important special meeting for county librarians and public librarians and trustees. The meeting is being called by Mrs. Merlin M. Moore, chairman of the Commission, for the purpose of discussing revision of the rules and regulations governing distribution of state aid to county and regional libraries.

This year the program committee has decided to have a general session at 8 o'clock on the first evening of the conference instead of the usual banquet. Dr. Rupert Vance, well-known authority on the South and problems of this region, will be the speaker at this session. A reception will follow.

OCTOBER 4—NATIONAL LIBRARY DAY

National Library Day was observed throughout America on Thursday, October 4, marking the founding of the American Library Association in Philadelphia in 1876, and giving final impetus to the 75th anniversary project of nation-wide adult discussion of the American Heritage under library leadership.

The Day was officially proclaimed by governors and mayors, following the recent message of President Truman to the ALA 75th Anniversary Conference in Chicago in which he called attention to National Library Day. The President praised the anniversary project which has for its theme, "The Heritage of the U.S.A. in Times of Crisis," and declared:

"I earnestly hope that every citizen will join in this endeavor under library leadership, because such understanding of our heritage will help Americans to think through the major problems of these critical days."

The observances ranged from simple open house events and exhibits of library materials for the heritage study to elaborate civic functions where tribute was paid to librarians. In Philadelphia, a program emphasizing the historical significance of the founding of the ALA was prepared by a committee headed by Harriet D. MacPherson, Dean of the School of Library Science, Drexel Institute of Technology.

Ralph E. Ellsworth, Director of Libraries, State University of Iowa, chairman of the ALA 75th Anniversary Committee, pointed out that National Library Day was scheduled to climax the preparations for the actual discussion program, and had been expected to draw public attention anew to a program which has already brought the library into focus as the fundamental service agency of a democracy.

National Library Day also brought the initial announcements from the committee which will function under a grant of $150,000 to the ALA from the Fund for Adult Education of the Ford Foundation "to assist public libraries in conducting experimental programs of adult discussion on the American heritage and its contemporary application." The committee has a staff set up at ALA Headquarters in Chicago. The director is Mrs. Grace Thomas Stevenson, Head, Adult Education Department, Seattle Public Library. The project will initiate a continuing program and provide for demonstrations in selected regional and local areas, consultation and advisory services to other libraries desiring to participate, and the training of discussion leaders.

The ALA President, Mrs. Loleta D. Fyan, State Librarian of Michigan, said concerning National Library Day: "Surely this occasion, and the heritage program which it inaugurates, gives us a new opportunity to take our part in helping meet the demands of national and world citizenship."

OUR CELEBRATION OF LIBRARY DAY

National Library Day was observed throughout the land on October 4. It marked the 75th Anniversary of the founding of the American Library Association in Philadelphia in 1876. President Truman recently urged all Americans to join in the American Library Association's 75th Anniversary activity—a nationwide study of "The Heritage of the U.S.A. in Times of Crisis." Ask your librarian for books which will help you to understand your heritage.

Governor Sidney McMath proclaimed October 4 as Library Day in Arkansas. Trustees and friends of libraries were urged to assume leadership, along with librarians, in making National Library Day a time for enthusiastic projection of the library through open house events, exhibits of materials carrying out the anniversary theme, and other similar promotional activities.

BOOKS FOR YOU

Are Arkansas librarians reading as many serious books as they should? Did you read Florence Craig's "Should Librarians Read Books?" in the WILSON LIBRARY BULLETIN January, 1951?

The 75th Anniversary of the founding of the American Library Association is being celebrated this year. Now is a good time for Arkansas librarians to re-read some serious books of the past as well as to read those of the present. Librarians should read books relating to the library profession and to our American heritage. Below are listed three books, two old and one new, of value to librarians. Have you read these books recently? If they are not available in your library, they can be borrowed from the Arkansas Library Commission.

Johnson, Alvin Saunders. PUBLIC LIBRARY—A PEOPLE'S UNIVERSITY. American Association for Adult Education, 1938.

This is a report on a study of adult education in American libraries.

Although the book is not new the principles are applicable to present-day libraries.

Learned, William Setchel. AMERICAN PUBLIC LIBRARY AND THE DIFFUSION OF KNOWLEDGE. Harcourt, 1948.

Mr. Learned prepared this manuscript in 1924 as a memorandum for use in the office of the Carnegie Foundation. It seemed to the trustees of the corporation so stimulating a presentation as to deserve publication. The goals set by Mr. Learned for the public library have not yet been reached. Perhaps a re-reading of the first chapter of this book might help us clarify our objectives today.

Leigh, Robert Devore. PUBLIC LIBRARY IN THE UNITED STATES. Columbia University Press, 1950.

This book is one of a series: GENERAL REPORT OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY INQUIRY.

"The study as a whole is designed to stimulate public librarians to re-examine realistically their most useful function and greatest potential contribution at a time when methods of communication are undergoing rapid change." Foreword.

Have you read Dr. Leigh's book? Have you re-examined the function and potential contribution of your library to your community?

ARKANSAS LIBRARIANS AT PEABODY

Arkansas had a large representation in Peabody Library School during the summer of 1951, with twenty-eight librarians and teacher-librarians attending. Juanita Campbell, librarian in the Conway High School, and Thelma McSpadden, teacher-librarian in the Cushman High School, received their M. A. degree in library science in August.

Other Arkansans took an active part in Library School activities. The vice-president of the third and fourth quarter class was Elsie Weisenberger, librarian in the Junior High School at Hope, and the secretary-treasurer of the same class was Mavis Rodman, librarian in Wilson High School. Janie Phillips, teacher-librarian at Huttig, was co-chairman of the social committee of the second quarter class. Serving on various committees for the annual breakfast of the Library School—which was held at the Andrew Jackson Hotel on May 11—were other Arkansans: Minnie Dee Gay, librarian of the Junior High School at Jonesboro, was on the committee to prepare the Directory for the Library School which was presented to all students at the breakfast. Billie Wallace, secretary-librarian in Stephens High School, served on the committee for reservations for the breakfast. The committee to purchase the gift that was presented to the Library School by the third and fourth quarter class was composed of Marie Eubank, Newport High School; Elsie Weisenberger, and Lucille Slater, librarian, Union County Library, El Dorado. The presentation of the gift at the breakfast was also made by Lucille Slater.

Besides those already mentioned, the following were enrolled in Library School:

Evelyn Cannon, Foreman.

Ruth Clawson, Librarian, Rogers High School.

Eugenia Condell, Teacher-Librarian, Central Grade School, Conway.

Lucy Finley, Librarian, Junior-Senior High School, Malvern.

Esther Frizzell, Little Rock.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

We urgently request all library-minded people in the state to forward to us for publication in our "News Notes" any item of current interest about libraries and librarians in Arkansas. Personalized news reporting seems more adequate than "cold facts" from newspaper press clippings. Please help us, won't you? If you do anything, tell us about it!!!

JUVENILE STORY WINS $3,000 AWARD

When the judges selected "All-of-a-kind Family" by Sydney Taylor as winner of the famous Charles W. Follett Award of $3,000.00, they based their decision not only on the story, but also on the fact that it opens a whole new world—New York's teeming East Side—to children throughout the country. "All-of-a-kind Family" will be published October 15 ($2.75) by Wilcox & Follett Company.

"All-of-a-kind Family" lived in a crowded, noisy, slum section of New York, but in their own private world this family was rich in warmth, understanding, and in native dignity. The five little girls—daughters of a poor Jewish peddler and his devoted wife—discovered that life can be very merry and gay despite occasional "problems", and Helen John has caught the vitality and excitement in her illustrations. Despite poverty, there were wonderful visits to the library, to the markets, and to relatives' and neighbors' homes; holidays were, in particular, periods of joy and celebration.

The one "mystery" in the happy lives of the children was "Charlie". Obviously, he should have been more than a peddler's assistant, but not until the very end is the reason for his "escape" to the lower East Side and his own explanation revealed.

In "All-of-a-kind Family", Sydney Taylor recounts what will be to many readers a new and quite different and wonderful world where, despite hardship, a healthy, happy family led its full and exciting life.

Mrs. Taylor told and then wrote of her childhood so that her daughter Jo—an only child—would not mind going to bed at night—because "it's so lonesome". But the manuscript was filed away until Mr. Taylor, hearing of the Charles W. Follett Award, "resurrected" it and sent it to the publisher. Mrs. Taylor was genuinely surprised when she was told that she had won the coveted $3,000 award. The Charles W. Follett Award is presented annually for worthy contributions to children's literature, and in 1950, "Johnny Texas", by Carol Hoff, won the award.

NEWS NOTES

Miss Lola Mae Dunnivant, assistant librarian in Little Rock high school, received her B. S. in L. S. degree from Louisiana State University this past summer.

Waldo Civic Club is sponsoring a library for Waldo citizens as a club project. The Waldo library deposit station, which was opened with 250 books for young people and adults on loan from the recently organized Columbia-Lafayette Regional Library, is located in McClure Variety Store. Mrs. Florence Beasley, chairman of the library committee of the Waldo Civic Club, is in charge. Members of the Waldo Boy Scout troop, with Ronald Baldwin as chairman, assisted in setting up the library. Shelves were donated by Ernest Felty, Waldo businessman.

Three new members have been lately added to the staff of the Little Rock Public Library. Mrs. James S. Scott, a native of Clarksville, is a graduate of the University of Arkansas, and received her B. S. in L. S. degree from Louisiana State University in 1950. She served one year as librarian at Clarksville high school, before coming to the Little Rock library where she is assistant reference librarian and circulation librarian.

Mrs. Thomas H. Jenkins, formerly of Memphis, had been associated with the Cossitt Library there for the past ten years. Mrs. Jenkins "comes from a family of librarians." Her father, Charles D. Johnston, was librarian at Cossitt Library for a number of years prior to his death in 1924. At the Little Rock Public Library she now serves as assistant in the Circulation department.

Miss Betty Lou Hutchinson, a 1951

graduate of Ouachita College, who formerly worked in the Children's department at the Little Rock Library, is now assisting in both the Children's department and Circulation department.

The Arkansas Library Commission Board recently announced the appointment of Mrs. Karl Neal as Acting Librarian and Executive Secretary of the Arkansas Library Commission. The former Commission librarian, Miss Irene V. Mason, was granted a year's leave of absence commencing September 1, to enable her to accept a grant-in-aid from the U. S. government to do library advisory and extension service in Thailand. Miss Mason's career in the library field was spotlighted in a colorful two-page spread which appeared in a national weekly magazine for July 14, 1951. Through error the stipulation was made in the article that Malvern, Arkansas, was "a typical town without a public library". The fact is that Hot Spring County Library has maintained its headquarters at Malvern for fourteen years. The error has been brought to the attention of the magazine's publishers.

Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson, Reference librarian at the University of Arkansas Medical School Library, has recently retired after twenty-three years of service. Since first assuming her duties as librarian in 1928, she has seen the library grow from a collection of 4,500 volumes to approximately 23,000 at the present time. "She has been instrumental in directing this expansion and modernization" of the library, "and has especially promoted the growth of the section of books dealing with the history of medicine and has accumulated a diversified number of books which date back to the earliest publication of medical books."

Miss Pattye Bosson, new high school librarian at Blytheville, Arkansas, is a native of Tennessee. She is a graduate of University of Tennessee, where she majored in sociology in the School of Education. She holds a master's degree in library science from George Peabody College at Nashville.

A former resident of Bentonville, Arkansas, Gerald Brogan, received his degree of master of arts in library science from the University of Denver, at Denver, Colorado. A graduate of Benton high school, Brogan received his B. A. degree from Colorado State College at Greeley, after three years of service in the army air corps. He now holds a position as research librarian in Denver.

The Malvern Colored Library Association sponsored a fashion show in the colored high school at Malvern on Friday night, September 28. All proceeds accrued to the benefit of the membership drive.

A Temporary Library setup for Wynne and Cross county has been located in the office of the County Supervisor. At the quarterly meeting of the Cross County Council on Children and Youth held in August, a discussion of library facilities for young people evidenced a "feeling among Wynne people that there is a definite need of such a library. . . . It is hoped that this movement will grow into a good county library for the entire public. Most towns the size of Wynne have a public library". Wynne school has an acceptable library.

Radio Station KOSE and the business houses of Osceola joined with the Mississippi County Library in celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the American Library Association. The radio station dedicated its day of broadcasting on October 4 to the Mississippi County Library, and during the day messages were read from the business firms congratulating the county library and urging the public to take advantage of its library facilities.
